BOSS Snowplow Expands Operations in Iron Mountain

New expansion furthers operational efficiency to help support future growth

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich. (August 4, 2020) – BOSS Snowplow, a leader in snow and ice management, today announced that it is expanding its facility in Iron Mountain, Michigan. The project will add approximately 44,000 square feet of additional manufacturing space to the existing facility, which will include a new paint line and improvements to its R&D facility to increase production capacity and support future growth.

“We are investing in our Iron Mountain facility to better support ongoing product development, expand our operational capacity, and to continue to meet the needs of our customers,” said Jody Christy, vice president of BOSS Snowplow. “This investment reinforces our commitment to the Iron Mountain community, and positions us to further strengthen and grow our relationships in the markets we serve.”

BOSS is grateful to the city of Iron Mountain for their support during this time of growth. The community support has validated this city as a great place to do business. This growth would not have been possible without the hardwork and commitment of BOSS’ dedicated employees to building the top snow and ice products in the industry.

Construction is expected to begin in summer of 2020 with Gundlach Champion, based in Iron Mountain, selected to lead construction of the facility expansion. The project is slated to be complete by spring of 2021.

With growth, also comes employment opportunities. BOSS is seeking a human resources manager, materials supervisor, design engineer and welders. Interested applicants should visit bossplow.com to apply.
